

April 17, 2014
Oregon Poison Center
Journal Club Articles

Works Cited

For Mexican Antivenom Maker, U.S. Market Is a Snake Pit / SCIENCE, News & Analysis, January 3, 2014; VOL 343; 16-17

Recurrent hemorrhage after western diamondback rattlesnake envenomation treated with crotalidae polyvalent immune fab (ovine) / auth. Joyia Fazelat, MD [et al]: Clinical Toxicology – (2008) 46, 823-826

Recurrent Coagulopathy With Delayed Significant Bleeding After Crotaline Envenomation / auth. Nicole F. O'Brien, MD [et al]: Pediatric Emergency Care - Volume 25, Number 7, 457-459, July 2009

Late hematologic toxicity following treatment of rattlesnake envenomation with crotalidae polyvalent immune Fab antivenom / auth. Anne-Michelle Ruha [et al.]: Toxicon 57 (2011) 53-59

Recurrent Coagulopathy and Thrombocytopenia in Children Treated With Crotalidae Polyvalent Immune Fab / auth. Alexander D. Miller, MD [et al.]: Pediatric Emergency Care, Volume 26, Number 8, 576-582, August 2010

Medically Significant Late Bleeding After Treated Crotaline Envenomation: A Systematic Review / auth. Eric J. Lavonas, MD [et al]: Annals of Emergency Medicine, Volume 63, No. 1, 71-78.e1, January 2014

Continuous IV Crotalidae Polyvalent Immune Fab (Ovine) (FabAV) for selected North American Rattlesnake bite patients / auth. Sean P. Bush [et al]: Toxicon 69 (2013) 29-37

Subacute coagulopathy in a randomized comparative trial of Fab and Fab2 antivenoms / auth. Boyer LV [et al]: Toxicon, 2013, 74:101-108.