

Family Medicine at School of Medicine Hooding Ceremony

The OHSU School of Medicine held its traditional Hooding Ceremony for graduating seniors on Thursday, June 4 at the Arlene Schnitzer Auditorium in downtown Portland.

Of the graduating class of 120 medical students, 16 are entering family medicine residency training programs.

Ron Stock, MD, Medical Director for Medical Education and Research, Sacred Heart Hospital, Eugene, Oregon, received the Community Preceptor Award, "which recognizes a physician or physician group that has demonstrated outstanding dedication to the education of medical students in the community setting." Dr. Stock is a Geriatrician and Family Physician who has been in the Eugene/Springfield community for 18 years. He is currently the Medical Director for Medical Education & Research and the Medical Director of Geriatrics for PeaceHealth Oregon Region. His role includes physician oversight of the development of the OHSU Medical Education and Research Collaborative as PeaceHealth's liaison with the OHSU School of Medicine and the University of Oregon in a project to expand medical student training in Oregon. He is also responsible for geriatric services and chronic care health services research for PeaceHealth. "My interests include taking care of older folks and teaching," says Dr. Stock. When he is not working, Dr. Stock enjoys playing with his children, basketball, hiking and camping.

2009 Family Medicine awards to graduating medical students include:

Oregon Academy of Family Physicians Outstanding Senior Award:

Trisha Adams Eckman

Mary Gonzales Lundy Family Medicine Award:

Jill Rasmussen Campbell

Robert B. Taylor, M.D. Family Medicine Award:

Jill Rasmussen Campbell

Family Medicine Clerkship Award:

Ashley Hart