Biographical/Historical

Doernbecher Memorial Hospital for Children was a new addition to healthcare facilities on Marquam Hill. Construction of the six-story hospital in 1925–26 was financed primarily by a donation from a charitable trust managed by the heirs of Frank Silas Doernbecher (1861–1921), a prominent Portland businessman who established the Doernbecher Manufacturing Company in Portland in 1900.[2] The company was Portland's leading furniture manufacturer,[3] and grew to become one of the country's largest furniture makers.[2] Frank Doernbecher had stipulated in his will that the money, which amounted to $200,000, be given "to some charity for the benefit of the people of Oregon".[4] The hospital's original name was the Doernbecher Memorial Hospital for Children, and from the start it was part of the University of Oregon Medical School,[4] which in the 1970s became Oregon Health & Science University.
