Lorenzi N, Riley R. Managing technological change, selected readings provided.

Journal of the American Medical Informatics Association and Harvard Business Review, selected readings provided.

Course Description:
Nearly everything that is accomplished in our society is done through the efforts of groups and organizations. Organizations are comprised of individuals. Therefore, the most important functions of managers in an organization include understanding and motivating individuals and organizing structural systems within which they can work in a productive manner. The field of Organizational Behavior deals with these issues. This course will consider the issues as they relate to medical informatics at three levels: The Individual, The Group, and The Organization. This course will also provide an introduction to a number of project management techniques and issues that are closely related to Organizational Behavior.

Course Objectives:
1. To review concepts, issues, and practices of Organizational Behavior.
2. To apply Organizational Behavior concepts in simulated health informatics situations to improve personal effectiveness in groups or organizations.
3. To impart an understanding of the relation between Organizational Behavior and the successful implementation of current management practices, especially in health care.

Additional Course Objectives:
1. To practice teamwork, especially virtual teamwork, in a self-directed team fashion by selecting, working with, evaluating, and rewarding team members as individuals and teams.
2. To apply the case method of analysis to simulated real life situations.
Course Grading:
Grades will be based on scores from examinations, written assignments, and team and class participation. The point breakdown is as follows:

- Team and class discussion: 25%
- Team paper: 30%
- Individual paper: 30%
- Quizzes: 15%

Quizzes:
There will be three quizzes to be taken through Sakai.

Teams, Individual Papers, and Team Paper:
Early in the term, teams will form and select topics about which they will write a case. Individuals will write papers (4 single spaced pages including references) offering background for the team. A case will be written by the team (the Team Paper, 10 single spaced pages or 20 double spaced plus references and appendices).

Papers must be typed and free of grammatical and spelling errors.

Team and class discussion:
Your grade for this will be based on class participation in the discussion board, and also on effort and effectiveness in your teamwork. Team members will evaluate one another.

Class participation is graded each week on a 5 point scale. You are expected to participate in each discussion topic as you would an open discussion in class. Make your points, comment on other's posts, and support your points during the week. You should participate during the week, not just make a statement and never return. Posting earlier in the week is recommended; it allows your points to be central to the discussion during the week.

Policy on assignments:
Your assignments will be due at 5 p.m. Pacific time on Tuesdays. Note that late assignments will incur severe grading penalties.

Academic Honesty

Academic honesty is required in order to pass this course. Students are encouraged to help each other; nevertheless, all quizzes, written assignments and presentations must be the work of the individual student. Literature and resources (including Internet resources) employed in fulfilling assignments must be cited.

Likewise, students are expected not to collaborate on the answers to individual assignments, although discussion of the concepts involved and working of similar problems together is permitted.
See http://www.ohsu.edu/xd/education/library/research-assistance/plagiarism.cfm?WT_rank=1 for information on code of conduct for OHSU and http://www.ohsu.edu/xd/education/teaching-and-learning-center/for-students/index.cfm for more information on citing sources and recognizing plagiarism.

In an effort to uphold the principles and practice of academic honesty, faculty members at OHSU may use originality checking systems such as Turnitin to compare a student’s submitted work against multiple sources.

To protect student privacy in this process, it will be necessary to remove all personal information, i.e. student name, email address, student u-number, or any other personal information, from documents BEFORE submission.
