We, future physicians of OHSU MED19, affirm the high standards demanded of us by our patients, instructors, peers, and the profession. We commit to diligently protect the fragile trust implicit in these relationships. We hereby define our guiding principles:

As LIFE-LONG LEARNERS we dedicate ourselves to the pursuit of excellence. We uphold the highest standards of integrity in our scholarly endeavors and understand that this work demands ongoing self-appraisal, adaptability, and accountability.

As PEERS we respect and support one another. We enable each other to realize our full potential: academically, professionally, and emotionally. We promote a collaborative culture that fosters individual development.

As CLINICIANS we embrace the responsibility and privilege of serving others. We defend the dignity and confidentiality of our patients. We pledge to act with compassion and intent. We welcome diversity and commit to practice with empathy while promoting an environment of inclusiveness.

As HUMANITARIANS we recognize that health, well-being, and access to quality care are universal human rights. We seek to empower the vulnerable, expose injustice, and advocate for the welfare of all.

We attest that the principles of this honor code are enduring. We sign this code as more than a token symbol, but as something that defines us every day as practitioners.
