CREED Symposium on October 24th

Dear academic researchers,

We are pleased to announce the first Community Research Enhancement and Education Development (CREED) Curricular Symposium.

You are invited attend from 1:00-5:00 on Monday October 24th (in the CDRC on OHSU campus).

This is an opportunity for our community partners (Linn, Lincoln, Jefferson, Crook, Deshutes and Benton Counties), OHSU researchers, and CTSA Community Engagement Experts (Kurt Stange, MD, PhD, Case Western U; Jack Westfall, MD, MPH, U of CO; and Margaret Handley, PhD, MPH, USCF) to gather for our project kick-off meeting.

Objectives of this meeting:

- Build relationships between academic and community partners in Oregon
- Familiarize attendees with the translational research structure at OHSU (OCTRI Community Engagement branch, ORPRN, and others in attendance)
- Highlight approaches to community engagement and community-based research in place across three diverse CTSAs (Case Western, University of California San Francisco, University of Colorado Denver)
- Identify the pros and cons for academic-community partnerships as perceived by community members and academic researchers
- Discuss “best practices” for developing academic-community research partnerships
- Brainstorm opportunities for academic-community based research partnership along the translational research spectrum (from bench to bedside to community)

Please reply to this email. Space is limited due to size of room, so please reply now.
Contact Nancy Rollins at rollinsn@ohsu.edu or (503) 494-1584 with questions.

Note: CTSA = Clinical and Translational Science Award. The Oregon Clinical and Translational Science Institute (OCTRI) is OHSU’s CTSA.