Course Description

Community Organizing for Health Equity equips interprofessional health professions students with the organizational tools to address the social and structural inequities that contribute to and perpetuate health disparities among individuals and communities identified as vulnerable, marginalized, or underserved. By working in interprofessional teams, students will hone their communication and collaboration skills; their understanding of different professions’ roles, responsibilities and expertise; and address social determinants of health in underserved populations. The didactic coursework will be complemented by community engagement experiences that allow student teams to apply skills and to collaborate around specific community-identified projects and goals.

Accommodations

OHSU is committed to providing equal access to qualified students who experience a disability in compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990, and the ADA Amendments Act (ADA-AA) of 2008. If you have a disability or think you may have a disability (physical, sensory, chronic health, psychological or learning, or other) please contact the Office for Student Access at (503) 494-0082 or studentaccess@ohsu.edu to discuss eligibility for academic accommodations. Information is also available at www.ohsu.edu/student-access. Because accommodations may take time to implement and cannot be applied retroactively, it is important to have this discussion as soon as possible. All information regarding a student’s disability is kept in accordance with relevant state and federal laws.

Technical Support

The OHSU ITG Help Desk is available to assist students with email account or network account access issues between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., Monday through Friday at 503-494-2222. For technical support in using the Sakai Course Management System, please contact the Sakai Help Desk at 877-972-5249 or email us at sakai@ohsu.edu.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

Students are responsible for their own academic work. Students are expected to have read and practice principles of academic honesty, as presented in your school’s student handbook.
