

Partnership in Scientific Inquiry

Partnership in Scientific Inquiry introduces high school students to the process of science, encourages student participation in national science competitions and fosters OHSU's relationship with the community. The course began in 1999.

Classes meet weekly throughout the spring semester as students research a science topic with their mentors and complete a research proposal. During the summer students may continue working on their research as interns with their mentors.

Applications are available in the fall and are due in December. Interested students should discuss the possibility of taking the course with their school counselor or advisor.
