

Recognizing Outstanding Service Excellence

Jason Russell

Field Technology Services – Health Care

Agnieska Balkowiec from Integrative Biosciences/School of Dentistry submitted the following nomination...

I would like to ask that you choose Jason for a Golden Rose Award this month. I have nominated Jason in the past and I do realize that our University employs many great people who deserve this recognition. However, in my opinion shared by several colleagues on campus, Jason's service to the University is truly EXCEPTIONAL. His passion for work is obvious - he puts heart and soul to projects he gets involved in. And those are often beyond the scope of his immediate job duties, such as reviving old/broken machines that should normally be replaced with new ones if departmental budgets were not slashed. Jason not only recovered all the files I so worried about when my computer suffered an unrecoverable failure a few days ago, but he has also put together a replacement machine, which I can use until we can afford to purchase a brand-new computer. The replacement machine he built for us came from his "computer junk yard", i.e. laptop computers that, without Jason's magic touch, was just that: useless junk. Jason allows all of us to continue our work knowing that, in these unusually difficult economic times, we can really count on each other's support and together overcome the difficulties that otherwise would have prevented us from achieving the excellence we all strive for. Jason is a true inspiration to all of us and we hope he is recognized by the special Golden Rose Award. Thank you very much for your consideration.
