

Our torch never dims

Choose any moment of any day and you'll find thousands of us at work. OHSU torchbearers, united by the singular vision to improve the health and wellbeing of those we serve — today, and in the future.

By design, OHSU can focus on health in a way few other universities or health care systems can. We're a public university devoted entirely to education and research in health sciences, and we serve our region's health needs as Oregon's only academic health center.

Shaped by Portland's renowned creative culture, we've learned that transforming health for Oregonians often lights the way for improving health everywhere. So, each day, we imagine what could be. We roll up our sleeves. And we galvanize others to join us. Because every moment counts.

Healing

OHSU is the top choice of Oregonians for life-threatening illnesses and injuries. We offer the largest number of specialists and sub-specialists in the region, with teams trained in complex care. We partner with community hospitals to bring more services to more Oregonians.

Teaching

Oregon depends on OHSU to train a significant portion of the doctors, dentists, scientists, public health professionals, nurses and others who improve health in their communities and around the world. Our interdisciplinary studies create a close-knit student community.

Discovery

Renowned scientists are drawn to OHSU by our track record of research success and our willingness to take on some of the toughest questions in medicine. We are pushing the pace of discovery for better health.

Outreach

OHSU is a public entity that holds out a promise to Oregonians to improve their health and wellbeing. To do this, OHSU partners with more than 200 community service programs across the state, with public agencies, and with other universities and hospitals.
