The Ted R. Lilley Cancer Continuing Umbrella of Research Education Program is a paid research internship that matches students with a cancer-specific researcher. Interns work full-time for eight weeks in a research laboratory alongside OHSU scientists conducting cancer research.

Interested in science research and want to gain hands-on lab experience?

Program offerings
- Paid internship in a research lab with a Knight Cancer Institute mentor
- Weekly curriculum in math, statistics, essay writing and more
- Gain real-world research experience
- Make connections with staff and faculty
- Seminars featuring experts from various oncology disciplines

Who should apply
- Current sophomores and juniors from Oregon high schools, particularly public school students in the Portland Metro area
- Students from historically underrepresented backgrounds in health sciences
- Must be 16 or older by June 18, 2018
- Students should have a 3.0 GPA or higher, have taken at least one science class (preferably biology), have an interest in research

Program dates
June 18 - Aug. 10, 2018

Application deadline
Jan. 22, 2018

Contact information
cdi@ohsu.edu
503-494-9216
www.ohsu.edu/diversity