

CaCoon

Public Health Nurse Home Visiting

CaCoon (short for CAre COOr-dination) is a public health program for children with special health needs. When children get health care and services from a number of different sources, it's important that all the moving parts work well together. Co-ordinated care and services are more efficient and effective.

CaCoon nurses can meet with families in their homes. They partner with families to clarify problems and find solutions. CaCoon nurses offer nursing expertise, and share information about local resources. This partnership helps families get the most from the services available to their children.

Eligibility CaCoon serves children (from birth to age 21) who have chronic health or developmental conditions, and who get care and services from a variety of sources. CaCoon is available in most Oregon counties. Local health departments vary in how many families they can serve through CaCoon.

Referral Families can request CaCoon services. Referrals may also come from professionals such as health care providers, schools, and community service agencies. To find out more about local CaCoon services, call your local public health department and ask for the Maternal and Child Health section.

A list of phone numbers for county health departments that provide CaCoon services is available here: <https://tinyurl.com/ycurdqlz>

503-494-8303
www.occyshn.org

CaCoon

Public Health Nurse Home Visiting

CaCoon (short for CAre COOr-dination) is a public health program for children with special health needs. When children get health care and services from a number of different sources, it's important that all the moving parts work well together. Co-ordinated care and services are more efficient and effective.

CaCoon nurses can meet with families in their homes. They partner with families to clarify problems and find solutions. CaCoon nurses offer nursing expertise, and share information about local resources. This partnership helps families get the most from the services available to their children.

Eligibility CaCoon serves children (from birth to age 21) who have chronic health or developmental conditions, and who get care and services from a variety of sources. CaCoon is available in most Oregon counties. Local health departments vary in how many families they can serve through CaCoon.

Referral Families can request CaCoon services. Referrals may also come from professionals such as health care providers, schools, and community service agencies. To find out more about local CaCoon services, call your local public health department and ask for the Maternal and Child Health section.

A list of phone numbers for county health departments that provide CaCoon services is available here: <https://tinyurl.com/ycurdqlz>

503-494-8303
www.occyshn.org

