

PEDIATRIC EM FELLOWSHIP

OHSU Doernbecher Children's Hospital and Randall Children's Hospital (RCH) at Legacy Emanuel are pleased to offer an ACGME accredited Fellowship in Pediatric Emergency Medicine. This partnership in post-graduate education unites both children's hospitals in Portland in a mission to educate the next generation of pediatric emergency physicians.

We also have an integrated ultrasound curriculum offering dual certification in both PEM and Emergency Medicine Ultrasound. The goal is for PEM fellows to acquire ultrasound skills equivalent to those gained during a traditional one year ultrasound fellowship. Dual certification is not a requirement of the fellowship; however, significant participation in ultrasound-centered didactics will be expected of all fellows.

Clinical training is split across two state-of-the-art children's hospitals offering fellows a mix of academic and community environments. Both RCH and OHSU are regional trauma centers for pediatrics serving large catchments covering all of Oregon and Southwest Washington.

RCH is a large, busy, urban community hospital with a full spectrum of tertiary pediatric services and subspecialists. In addition, it is a new 9-story, freestanding children's hospital that has 165 inpatient beds, and a 22-bed, state-of-the-art children's ED.

OHSU Doernbecher Children's Hospital is the regional academic center and affiliated with the OHSU School of Medicine. This mix of environments is synergistic and offers fellows a balanced training environment with unique clinical and academic perspectives.
