Barbara Glidewell, M.B.S.
Barbara received Associate Degree, Nursing, Bachelor of Arts – Communication, and Masters of Behavioral Science – Applied. She holds several formal post-graduate certifications. Her 43 years at Oregon Health & Science University include 34 years as OHSU Ombudsman, Patient Advocate, and Director, Dept. of Patient Relations. She administratively directed Palliative & Comfort Care, Patient Advocate Service, Medial Interpreter Service and four years, directing Clinical Social Work. She was Chair of the OHSU Ethics Consultation service for nine years. Semi-retiring in 2010 she joined OHSU faculty as Clinical Associate Professor. In 2016 she was honored with appointment to Emeritus Associate Professor status.

She is a Senior Scholar with the OHSU Center for Ethics in Health Care. During her 30 years with the Center she variously served as Associate Director, and Co-Director of the Interprofessional Health Care Ethics Certification Fellowship. She continues actively teaching clinical ethics to students, resident and fellows across the health care disciplines. She speaks locally and regionally on a variety of subjects such as: end of life discussions, surrogacy, decisional capacity, delivering bad news, moral distress, conscientious objection and Advance Directives and POLST.

Lynn A. Jansen, Ph.D., R.N.
Dr. Jansen is the inaugural holder of the Madeline Brill Nelson Chair in Ethics Education in the Center for Ethics in Health Care at OHSU. After receiving her nursing degree and working as a registered nurse, she pursued academic studies at Columbia University, earning a doctorate in political science with a focus on political theory, and at the University of Chicago, MacLean Center as a postdoctoral fellow in medical ethics.

Her work has appeared in the leading journals in the field including The Hastings Center Report, The Kennedy Institute of Ethics Journal, Bioethics and The Journal of Medicine and Philosophy. Dr. Jansen was the Principal Investigator on a five year RO1 Grant funded by the National Cancer Institute designed to study the impact of the optimistic bias on risk/benefit assessments by patient-subjects who enroll in early phase cancer trials. She was also awarded a grant from the Greenwall Foundation to study the normative significance of the optimistic bias to informed consent. Her work on the optimistic bias has received national media attention and has been discussed in leading medical journals.

PLEASE NOTE
This is the final lecture of the 2018-2019 Bioethics Study Group series. The series will resume in October 2019 for the 2019-2020 series.

We hope you found the lectures valuable.
