

Choanal Atresia

Choanal atresia (kō-ə-nə ə-'trē-zhə) is a narrowing or blockage of the air passage of the nose that is present at birth. The condition is the most common nose-related birth anomaly in newborn infants. Girls are born with this condition about twice as often as boys. More than half of babies with choanal atresia also have other congenital problems. Choanal atresia is most often diagnosed shortly after birth while the infant is still in the hospital.
