The Oregon National Primate Research Center invites college undergraduates who are currently enrolled as sophomores or juniors in accredited 4-year institutions to apply for the ONPRC Summer Fellowship Program. Successful applicants for one of several 10-week apprenticeships will receive a $3000 stipend. (Successful applicants who live out of state may also be eligible for up to $400 in assistance with travel expenses.)

Eligibility

The Summer Fellowship Program for Undergraduates seeks qualified applicants who will enter either their junior or senior year in an accredited four-year college or university in the Fall of 2020.

Program Description

Principal Investigators in the Divisions of Neuroscience, Reproductive & Developmental Sciences, Cardiometabolic Health, Genetics, and Pathobiology & Immunology oversee research programs related to high-priority medical needs that are expected to increase in importance and funding emphasis over the coming decades. These include research in neurodevelopment, neuroendocrinology, neurodegeneration, cancer, aging, mental illness, brain injury, addiction, obesity, reproductive health, immune response to infectious agents, and stem cells.

Selected applicants will work as part of a research team in an established laboratory alongside a staff member whose research interests complement the student's own. A special summer seminar series, weekly lab meetings, journal clubs, and access to other laboratories at the Center combine to make this program a comprehensive, creative and accelerated learning experience.

We look forward to receiving your application.
