This case demonstrates the importance of a broad differential diagnosis for acute onset dyspnea in a patient with multiple comorbid processes. Arteriovenous fistula and grafts for hemodialysis are associated with High-Output Heart Failure.

Physical exam findings may include Kussmaul’s Sign.

Follow this link to see a digital version of this poster