A workshop for those who advocate for others.
This workshop is designed to enhance your skills in supporting people as they become more ill and frail. Attendees will learn the vocabulary and skills needed to help people talk about what matters most with their health care professionals and others as they move toward completing a POLST (Portable Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment) form.

If you are interested in taking the next step in advocating for informed decision-making near the end of life, please join us.

Who should attend?
Social workers
Faith leaders
Hospice volunteers
Caregivers
Elder law attorneys
Allied health professionals welcome

Those who attend will have the opportunity to sign up to receive important updates on changes regarding the Oregon POLST form.

Dr. Susan Tolle founded and has directed the Oregon Health & Science University Center for Ethics in Health Care since 1989 and has shepherded its growth into a now internationally recognized ethics center with programs such as the Portable Order for Life-Sustaining Treatment (POLST) program and more recently the Oregon POLST Registry.
