An Overview of Oregon Definitions & Reimbursement

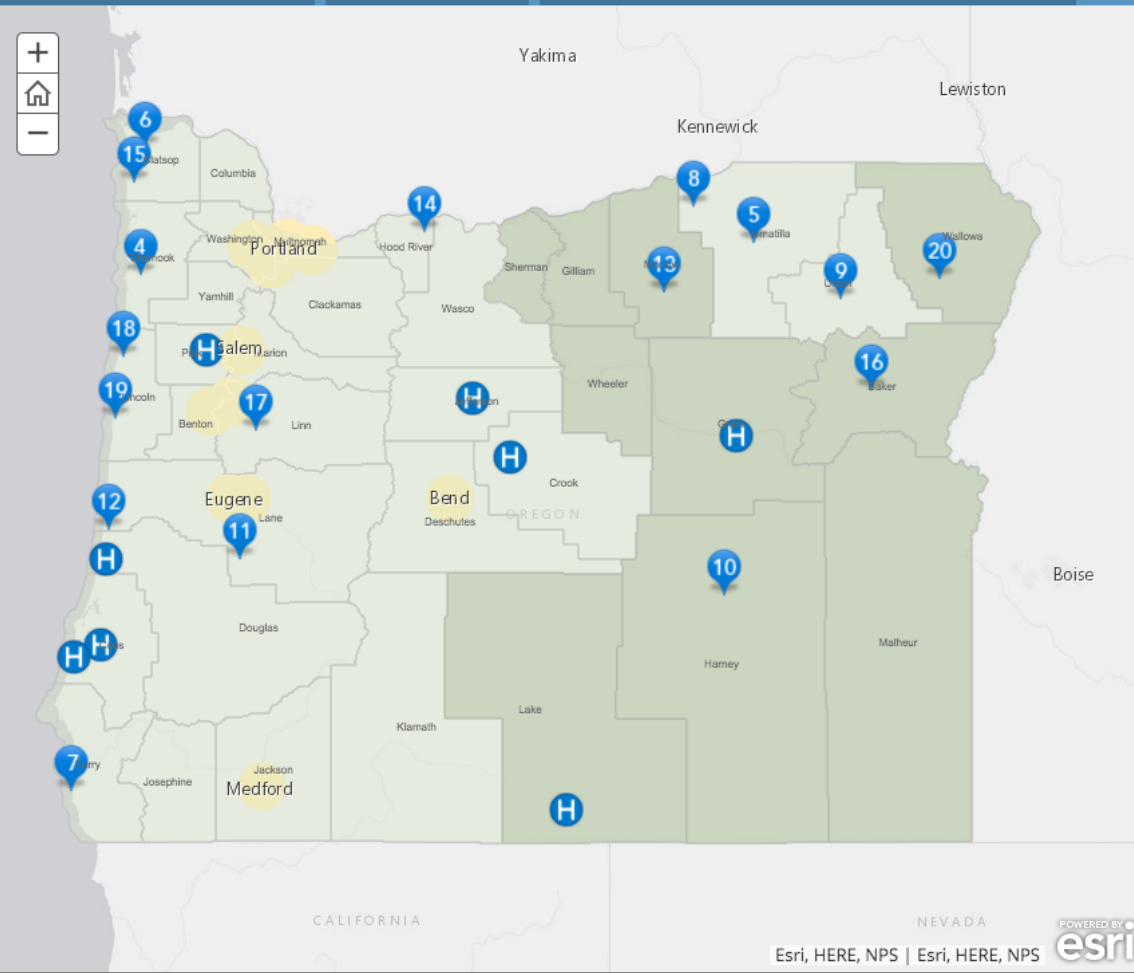

"Telemedicine" is the provision of health services to patients by physicians and health care practitioners from a distance using electronic communications.

"Telehealth" is the use of electronic and telecommunications technologies for the distance delivery of health care services... to improve a patient's health status and to enhance delivery of the health care services and clinical information.

"Originating-site" is where a patient is located while receiving telemedicine services.

"Distant-site" is where a telemedicine provider, at the time the telemedicine provider is providing telemedicine services, is practicing as an employee or under contract.

Each payor has their own definition of Telehealth/ Telemedicine. The ORH Telehealth Reimbursement Overview describes Medicare, Medicaid, and Private
