
Friday, June 26, 2020
12:00pm - 1:00pm

Join us for this live webinar at:
Daniel Labby Seminar in Medical Ethics
The Covid-19 pandemic has stressed the healthcare system around the world. The prospect of shortages of equipment, medications and vaccines remains real. How should we think about the ethical challenge of allocating resources under these conditions?

Join us online for a lively and informative webinar on Friday, June 26 at noon.

Our Speakers

Dr. Clarke serves as the Seminar moderator, calling on the expertise of invited colleagues and audience members to explore current ethical dilemmas. Dr. Clarke is President of the Psychophysiological Disorders Association. He is also Assistant Director at the Oregon Health & Science University (OHSU) Center for Ethics in Health Care and Clinical Assistant Professor of Gastroenterology Emeritus at OHSU. Additionally, Dr. Clarke is Associate Faculty at Arizona State University, Clinical Advisor to the Stress Illness Recovery Practitioners Association (U.K.) and a Clinical Lecturer with Pacific University in Oregon.

David Clarke, MD

Dr. Jansen is the inaugural holder of the Madeline Brill Nelson Chair in Ethics Education in the Center for Ethics in Health Care at OHSU. After receiving her nursing degree and working as a registered nurse, she pursued academic studies at Columbia University, earning a doctorate in political science with a focus on political theory, and at the University of Chicago, MacLean Center as a postdoctoral fellow in medical ethics. Her work has appeared in the leading journals in the field including The Hastings Center Report, The Kennedy Institute of Ethics Journal, Bioethics and The Journal of Medicine and Philosophy.

Lynn A. Jansen, PhD, RN