In 1921, Frank S. Doernbecher left $200,000 through his will (administered by his daughter Ada and son Edward) to benefit the people of Oregon. The Doernbechers were convinced of the need for a special hospital to serve needy children under the care and supervision of the University of Oregon Medical School.

On October 14, 1923, plans for the new hospital were announced, along with its purpose: to advance pediatric health care and the prevention of childhood diseases through research and training of future health care providers. The Doernbecher family specified that patients would be received in this hospital regardless of their ability to pay.

Additional funds were needed to build the new hospital, so in July 1924 the Doernbecher Guild was created to raise and distribute funds in support of the project. Thanks to these efforts, a six-story hospital opened on Marquam Hill on July 30, 1926. Doernbecher Memorial Hospital for Children was born.

Today, Doernbecher is the Northwest's premier pediatric hospital, providing exceptional family-centered care to the children of the region and beyond.

Oregon Health

FOUNDATION

The legacy of Frank Doernbecher and of all those who have included OHSU Doernbecher Children's Hospital in their long-term plans has helped make Doernbecher a leader in pediatric research and family-centered care.

Since 1926, children and their families have turned to Doernbecher Children's Hospital for help, healing and hope. Today, Doernbecher is Oregon's premier pediatric health center, providing the region's widest range of children's health care services and serving as the primary center for Oregon Health & Science University's pediatric programs.

As part of Oregon's only academic medical center, Doernbecher offers the most advanced treatments available in a kid-friendly setting. Healing children today while working toward tomorrow's cures is one reason we're recognized among the nation's best children's hospitals. And every year, Doernbecher's dedicated staff train tomorrow's pediatric specialists.

Your planned gift will have a lasting impact on the health and well-being of the region's children. Your gift also qualifies you for membership in the Frank Doernbecher Guild whether you choose to support Doernbecher generally or to direct your gift to support a specific program, department, research area or endowment.
