

Hartford Award for Research and Practice (HARP) Program Call for Doctoral Dissertation Research Proposals

Purpose

The HARP for Doctoral Dissertation Research Proposals is an award to support qualified doctoral students whose dissertation focuses on improving the health and health care of older adults. It is awarded to Ph.D. students during the final stages of dissertation research in the OHSU School of Nursing (SON) Ph.D. program and administered by the Hartford Center of Gerontological Excellence (HCGE).

This fund is not to replace the scholarship mechanism, the T32/NRSA fellowships, or other academic and dissertation funding mechanisms. Rather, the purpose of this award is to assist students during a critical phase of their dissertation.

Eligibility

OHSU SON Ph.D. students applying for this award must meet the following criteria:

1. Dissertation research is focused on improving the health and health care of older adults,
2. Faculty committee and IRB have approved the dissertation proposal,
3. Dissertation advisor recommends support,
4. Student is actively engaged in data collection and/or analysis, and
5. Completion of dissertation is expected within one year of receiving the HARP.

Only students who have not previously received funding from the Dissertation HARP are eligible to apply.

Application Process and Timeline

You may apply for HARP support for your doctoral dissertation when you meet the eligibility requirements outlined above. THERE IS A ROLLING DEADLINE. Funding begins upon the IRB approval and award notification from the HCGE, and is expected to be spent within one year thereafter.

Up to $3,000 is available per award. The funding may be used for research assistance, statistical consultation, dissertation research expenses, or other approved requests related to completion of the dissertation work. To learn more please contact the HCGE Project Administrator.

Office of Proposal and Award Management \(OPAM\) provides pre-award administration. You must work with the SON Office of Research Development and Support (ORDS) staff to develop your budget. Please contact snords@ohsu.edu at least one month prior to submitting your proposal in order to meet internal OPAM submission deadlines. Applications will be considered incomplete until a SoN ORDS staff member has reviewed and signed off on your budget. Best practice is to have an idea of the costs you would like this award to cover before you meet with the ORDS staff.

ORDS meeting:	One month before HARP proposal submission
OPAM deadline:	10 business days before HARP proposal submission
