

2022 SPRING SYMPOSIUM

From the Great Resignation to the Great Reconfiguration: Connecting research and practice

*Oregon Institute of

Friday, June 3, 2022
9 AM - 3:30 PM PST
Virtual via Webex

The pandemic has coupled with other workplace and economic challenges to create what is frequently referred to as “The Great Resignation” or “The Big Quit.” This trend has been illustrated particularly in the United States, as employees voluntarily resign from jobs en masse, beginning in early 2021. This full day symposium will identify the key drivers of the challenges experienced by many employers to attract and retain qualified employees to fill job openings. Most of the day will be spent focusing on successful strategies organizations can do to recruit and retain employees, and address the significant well-being challenges felt by many American workers.

Keynote: Berrin Erdogan, Ph.D., Professor of Management, Portland State University
