The Oregon Bioethics and Humanities Colloquium presents

Imagining Family Life with Autism as an Open-Ended Journey

By Daena Goldsmith, PhD, MA
Department of Rhetoric & Media Studies
Lewis & Clark College

Thursday, April 14th from 12-1PM PT
OHSU Mackenzie Hall - 3rd floor, room 3198
and virtual WebEx
Add to calendar
Outlook - Google - Apple
Dr. Daena J. Goldsmith is a Professor of Rhetoric & Media Studies and Associate Dean for Faculty Development at Lewis & Clark College. Dr. Goldsmith earned a B.S. in Communication at Lewis & Clark College and an M.A. and Ph.D. in Speech Communication from the University of Washington.

Her research and teaching focus on how communication enacts identities, relationships, and communities. Her award-winning book, Communicating Social Support, examines how friends and family support one another through everyday stresses and life crises. She has also published on how family members make sense of illness and disability through conversation and storytelling. She is a workshop facilitator and board member of the Northwest Narrative Medicine Collaborative.

To find the conference room, enter Mackenzie Hall through the main door. Head left down the hallway and take the elevator to the 3rd floor. The classroom will be just to your left as you exit the elevator.