Office of Continuing Education

Dear Oregon Health Science University IDS Network Providers,

Oregon State University College of Pharmacy is proud to share a discount with OHSU IDS Network Providers for our online Cultural Competence Continuing Education course, Cultural Competence and Preventing Health Disparities.

Health disparities affect the health of the individual and the health of society. This program looks at the social determinants of health and how culture can affect health beliefs. In addition, this program introduces the concept of cultural competence as a process to improve patient interactions. This training exposes the learner to ideas and tools to prevent health disparities.

The Oregon Health Authority's Office approves this course of Equity and Inclusion as educational training for all healthcare professionals.

Available Accreditation:

This program is available for continuing education credits through select accreditation boards. If you are a healthcare provider eligible for continuing education credits from one of the below accreditation boards, please follow the appropriate link to register:
