

MOU: TUITION WAIVER FOR PhD STUDENTS IN THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
FY'25 and FY'26

I. DEFINITIONS

Tuition: These are funds collected by a university to offset the cost of educating students. Tuition is set by the university in consultation with the schools and programs, and publicly available in the OHSU FEE BOOK published by the registrar. Tuition is charged by credits enrolled each term.

Tuition waiver: The amount of tuition paid by the School of Medicine. Often called a 'waiver' or 'exemption' for students, these are amounts covered from the SOM budget and represent a loss of tuition income to the School of Medicine.

II. HISTORY OF TUITION COLLECTION IN THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE (SOM): Historically the SOM has waived tuition for the majority of PhD students, similar to SOM across the USA. In response to a 2006 faculty committee, charged with increasing revenue for graduate programs, the Dean of the SOM (Dr Mark Richardson) began collecting a portion of tuition from grants, and waiving the remainder. In 2007, the amount collected was either $500/term, or, if the student was supported by a training grant or fellowship or foundation that includes tuition in the budget, the full amount of allowable tuition on the grant was collected. Tuition above these amounts was waived by the School of Medicine. In FY 2022, the SOM linked the tuition exemption to the cost of credits, and waived amounts above 1 credit/term. Since FY 2023, the SOM has exempted tuition above 1.5 credits/term.

III. CHANGE IN COLLECTION OF TUITION STARTING FIRST DAY OF FALL TERM, 2024:

The School of Medicine will collect a minimum of the cost of 1.5 credits of tuition (at the rate listed annually in the Registrar's OHSU FEE Book) or, if the student was supported by a training grant or fellowship or foundation that includes tuition in the budget, the full amount of allowable tuition on the grant is collected. Tuition above these amounts will be waived by the School of Medicine.

Examples: A full-time student; registered for 14 credits (average credit amount) has a tuition bill of $11,285/term.

- a. If supported by faculty research grants, the faculty mentor covers $1,225/term (according to the FY25 FEE BOOK), and the SOM covers the remaining $10,060/term.*
- b. If supported by a training grant or fellowship that includes a budget for 60% of the actual tuition level at the applicant institution, up to $16,000/year (up to 21,000/year for F30 awards), the grant/fellowship is charged the maximum allowable tuition, and the SOM covers the remainder.*

IV. ELIGIBILITY FOR TUITION WAIVER FROM THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE;
FALL TERM 2024 through end SUMMER TERM 2026

The SOM tuition waiver is available to PhD students who are (all conditions must apply):

- a. enrolled full-time in a PhD program within the School of Medicine or enrolled as a PhD student in the MD/PhD program
- b. receiving a stipend as described in the School of Medicine Graduate Student Stipend Policy
- c. conducting research with a mentor who holds a primary appointment at OHSU and is a member of our School of Medicine Graduate Faculty
- d. conducting research in an OHSU (including the VA) funded laboratory

Allison Fryer, PhD
Associate Dean Graduate Studies, School of Medicine

Kelly Caverzagie, MD
Senior Associate Dean Education, School of Medicine

Nathan R Selden, MD, PhD
Dean School of Medicine