OUR SPEAKER
Dr. Sarah Goodlin is a geriatrician and palliative care physician, chief of geriatrics at the Portland VAMC and Professor of Medicine OHSU. She is President of Patient-centered Education and Research and directed the Palliative Care-Heart failure Education and Research (PC-HEART) collaborative, a national working group of researchers and clinicians formed to improve quality of life and meet the needs of patients with advanced heart failure and their families.

Sarah attended Yale University and Dartmouth Medical School. From 1995-1998, she was a Faculty Scholar by the Project on Death in America to develop and implement improvement in care for the dying at the major teaching hospitals for Dartmouth Medical School. She also developed the New Hampshire End of Life Project, a two-year collaborative to improve end of life care and develop outcome measures for care of persons near the end of life. In Utah, at Intermountain Health Care, she initiated quality improvement projects for care of the frail elderly and for persons with advanced heart failure. In 2002 and 2003, Dr. Goodlin directed two consensus conferences on Palliative and Supportive Care in Advanced Heart Failure, funded by the Agency for Healthcare Quality and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

Dr. Goodlin is a fellow of the American Academy of Hospice and Palliative Medicine and of the American College of Cardiology. She co-chairs the cardiovascular technical expert panel of the Physician Consortium for Performance Improvement® Heart Failure Work Group, is a member of the Quality Task Force of the Heart Failure Society of America, and the Palliative Care Workgroup and the Geriatric Cardiology Section of the American College of Cardiology.

Dr. Goodlin has authored 55 articles and co-edited two books: Supportive Care in Heart Failure, Oxford University Press 2008, and End of Life Care in Cardiovascular Disease, Springer Press 2015.
