APPLYING TO THE CERTIFIED NURSE-MIDWIFERY PROGRAM

The Nurse-Midwifery program at OHSU prepares students to meet the unique health care needs of women. Nurse-Midwives provide primary and gynecologic care to women as well as specialty care and support for expecting mothers and their infants. In addition to the reproductive science, students examine the influences of culture, tradition and the social, economic and political forces that influence the health of women. The program strives to prepare compassionate, skilled clinician-scholars willing to address issues that affect the lives of women. The faculty has three priorities for their graduates: a scientific basis for clinical practice, clinical competence, and a perspective that views a woman in the context of her family. All faculty in the program participate in a faculty practice, which serves as a primary learning site for students. Other clinical opportunities are provided in community health centers, health maintenance organizations, migrant health clinics, and private practices. Students receive more than 1000 hours of supervised clinical practice in the program.

The Nurse-Midwifery (NM) program of study has been designed to offer a combination of graduate core courses, advanced practice core and NM specialty courses. This combination prepares our students for practice in the field and simultaneously provides a framework for clinical leadership and policy that is critical for any midwife in practice.

Degree options: Students in this program are eligible for certification after completing two years and receiving the master of nursing (MN) degree. They may also elect to complete an additional year of education and receive the doctor of nursing practice (DNP) degree. Either option offers a practice-focused curriculum that will support the career trajectory for those pursuing expert clinical practice and leadership as a certified Nurse-Midwife. A post master’s certificate option (PMCO) is also available in this area for nurse practitioners of another specialty.

Course delivery: This program is offered full-time on the Portland campus and starts once a year in the fall.

Admissions Factors:
Admissions decisions are strongly based on the following criteria:

- Cumulative GPA & Science GPA of 3.0 or higher
- 3 Letters of Recommendation
- Essay responses
- Interview (for select applicants)
- TOEFL scores (for international applicants)
- GRE scores are not required, but if taken may be submitted. The lack of reported GRE scores will not disadvantage an application.
